

Sounds from the Stone Age

Desire Direct

Desire Direct is doing research in the ecology of soil and advocates for digging up the geological paradigm and a refill of art & poetry with messy matter. Abstract and concrete experiments are conceptualized to proceed at a reasonable base level, that holds the wealth of abandoned, dense materials and gives way to the penumbral vision of the psychic.

Documentation about work-in-progress can be found here.
Please do have a look at the paraquel of a piece that will follow.

Table of Contents

Moorhead	1
Stone Rose	3

Moorhead

Survival condos mirror the manifold representations of gustoes and moods, but what they all have in common is an underlying ramified network of nodes that supports dynamic content. Interiors consist in large parts of copper, recycled from depreciated currencies, turning everything into open circuits of transnational hardware and local wetware. Lyndsay Moorhead, programmer and SF author, has added the feature of a picturesque suburban scene to her sitting-room, which appears abnormally large. The representation of a patio, furnished in a mix of late rococo style and functional practicality, has been realized by the deeply symbolic and technically refined art of trompe-l'oeil and forced perspective. A quite disorientating surroundings on first enter, until madness, the brain's most effective protective measure, cuts the cause-effect chain and fogs the unidirectional mindset. As soon as thought is realigned, substantial reality and ethereal dream fuse into a clear whole, which can be experienced as refreshingly stimulating.

The barren, rocky landscape stretching across the horizon is a marvelous view and as if composed down to last detail, flickering mirages float under a luminous tangerine sun. Moorhead discovered them by pure chance when a random constellation of prism, mirror, lens (a set-up that is now permanent) revealed otherwise hidden turbulences. A rather non-rational investigation of the zone by meteorological methods turned out negative and supported the suspicion that her walls are oozing energy. Such a movement of vibes requires elastic matter, even perhaps a gaseous atmosphere, which can be potentially life-threatening in hallucinogenic space. But all she can do is to keep a constant eye on the events, as there is no way to pilot or deactivate the behavior, which propagate forward as if by magick. Moorhead says, if she would writing this instead of living in the middle of it, she would link the root of evil to the structure of this gated community, whose architects presumably made plans far in advance. She consulted Dr. Erin Bryant, long time friend and assistant professor in the Earth & Planetary Sciences Department at UCSC, who took a detailed mapping of the building complex and a collection of geological samples for laboratory testing.

Cemetery contemplations The will to dance on charnel ground frenzied movement in sphere ideally round Here! chandala is meeting the lord out of control, murder the ego by loosen the chord

whirling in rhythm to drums of bones made of two related cones beating time from both sides waving goodbye to past and future rides

Dog has looked at corpse already sagdid safeguards departure steady feasting on carcass u praised vulture!
flesh in acid, crop is bulged keeping away plague from culture neverending scattered loop Not locked in! ur soul goes whoop Sittin' on corpses, voyage in courses practice till u Get in trance and dreams Fulfill bout necromance

Atar, you are kept for special moments coz US baggin' key components blameless energy divine, shameless utilized for prime All 'em ghosts who went for a roast, today's worth an organ's shitpoast

Moorhead, and later also Bryant, got involved with Pneumatics some time ago. Back then, the faith community was girdled by excitement as the integration of the art of dying into modern lifestyle paved the way for a neoteric experience of sensations. So are singularity and journeys on the hyperloop no longer lofty ideals but daily reality. Politicians and other celebrities, solely drawn to the status of being awarded fellowship, bragged publicly about suffering mild to moderate disease, which, as rumour has it, is associated with the 'death cult'. They exposed themselves to great risk once underestimating the intensity of mental deterioration, that has unfurled amongst the initiated, who accepted an invitation eyes wide shut. According to New Testament scholar and textual critic Bruce M. Metzger, the Pneumatic canon is "a collection of authoritative books", which permits the addition of entries through the infernal process of continuous revelation. In technical terms this means that sound of the Year Zero resonates in its unceasing rhythm of transmission and reception and - to the traditio - ensures it through time and space. The susceptible brain will not be spared and crashes, leaving behind a shattered temple of consciousness. In order to thrive however, primitive man had relied on the participation in evasive language games. Those occult practices, a pattern of alterations on the flow of Nothing still shine today in the liturgical rites of the Pneumatic diaspora.

Gentle wind of high volume stimulates formerly garrulous Moorhead to eloquently illustrate the traumatic conditions she experienced with man-age-ment software, which consequently led to her departure. "Opting for permadeath was a tough decision, but it allows for emergence without anteriority, liberates from the burden of certainty and adds utter importance to communicative action. The Economy of Desire was a tried-and-tested model for byr, fueled by negative and reflexive cognition until concrete exchange aroused feelings of shame and guilt, at least from the time convenient means of payment were introduced. Unbound matter, respectively mere abstractions of it, went into circulation, "stuff that does not find spontaneous demand" as Lasch is quoted in the paper 'A Stupidity-Based Theory of Organizations'. And this vicious cycle is called, for good reason, the economy of persuasion, which provides its own propulsion, viz. self-reinforcing stupidity, provoked by the convulsive fixation on algorithms. Yes, this is madness by pure logic not by imagination - and as an engineer of fantasies I know what I am talking about - Giving nature a little boost .. slightly bending it is totally cool, but why those constant sham transformations and the concealment of bitter truths on the cosmetic level?" She goes on clamoring, whilst checking her meticulous appearance on screen. "You then ask, why did I became a writer? I liked the beautiful sound of my nails on the keyboard, so I lengthened my strings."

mAgIK hÖLdERLiN Trapper, Rapper, confidence trickster Coyotl not ur average hipster trunk is smackin' on ur neck while You do the sisyphian job to build up the deck

tremor in big-ass rock is linked with the airlock
Not frightens a chaser coz Lizards determined to undo erasure
Hast es gehört nit?
then feel it - is lit

Mothafucka full of scorn
when monster slayers go for the bourne;
and it leaks so big ye got the cheeks Changing Woman, cosmos boss, bring it on! All that brown sauce!

Coyote-man-medicine_bundle was in toto trans and sane before browsing the Great Plains became mundane.
Accumulate to mound, a sacred ground,
but Abundance of shell, means settler's hell Crazy! Wile E. is deemed as really hazy!

man, now it looks u're in bad mood
coz recursive
shape-shiftin not likely happens that smooth PTSD integral part of modern seyn since killin' the game became reason to whine

Stone Rose

The general order in the zone is to 'Stay at home' and there is no urgent need to go outside, as home offers countless amenities and attentive service for anybody. The normativity of home with its sedating familiarity makes a soft and pleasant blanket that spends either cooling or warming effects to automatically temper the ambience. On the other hand and as a matter of fact, it is not forbidden to transgress and walk on to the border, as prohibitions and restrictions are apparently not the policy in the zone. 'Stay alert', which means everything and nothing, is Daddy's last passive-aggressive warning to keep you home and join him on his own controlled death drive. The coldness of the outside is not intended for those trying to divorce death from life and suffer from ag-uh-ruh-FOE-b-uh. At the beginning of my journey and haunted by his farewell, with every step and every crackle under my feet, which I didn't so much hear but awfully feel, I've expected to be shredded into pieces. A walk straight in the mouth of madness that I could only find in utter cane. In almost unbearable pain I was tiptoeing over an illusory minefield, brambles tattering my nylons up to my thighs, creating runs up my pubis, stopped only by the firm fit of my crotch. What was I doing out here in the desert?

Without a point on the horizon, the reasonable mind is unable to draw a straight line and make out a destination. One can see far in bright emptiness, infinitely as they say, as long as there are valid constructs one can cling to. Just in time, I was blinded by looking into a dark nothingness. Pulled by unknown forces and solely dragged along by my body, I couldn't diagnose the multiple signs offered to me, as I was in a smokescreen from shooting all my powder. Bullets of desire intensified in any direction and it was too late to trigger the scram procedure. In this theatre of operation the enemy's secret weapon is a trillionth of a rock, stuff, you can actually 'see' if you just look close enough. The technology was penetrating the flesh directly through the vein, molting the brain and sending shivers up and down my spine. Climbing and playing on this liminal skeleton made out of dust and FUBAR, another spectrum opened up for me. I felt betrayed by my eyes and a relentless urge to rid myself of alien matter released the superhuman powers of speed, strength and agility to pull them out of their sockets. With the sensation of cold blood cords dangling across my face, I held the frozen, firm orbs far from the former bony prison of my mind and donated them to the deceptive star as a thoughtful gift. Two non-fungible tokens in Ecrypto Xchange to experience true value, which can only be found in non sense.

Sandoil Trillions of glas beads precious Their High Homogeneity H owling
 in squeezing Pressure Cutting-edge genital ()ounds bored by state-of-the-art drill bits Ent ice to go inside.

My ramblings on rocky ground got interrupted when I stepped on something that was half buried in fine granular, then mounted upright and struck my shank. By taking hold of it and by its smell of the old grease, I've identified the femur of a vertebrate. So I started digging with my bare hands and hoeing the soil with my Louboutins until an about 5ft long balloon-shaped capsule surfaced. The base material of the vessel was only partially exposed, most of it was wrapped in elastic black leatherette, which maybe served as shock absorpion and as extra sealant against contamination that could bleed through the small orifice, which was giving access on the tapered side. The other side was embossed with inscriptions and I felt the phonetic signs, a sonorous manual to guide you safe and sound to the afterlife. After scratching the ice from the dust-stained glass pane with my fringed fingernails, the unflattering picture of a shock frozen mummy that I assumed in the fetal position appeared in my mind. I dismissed a first strange thought, like if this posture would give away an indication on how to navigate further and to avoid destiny. The glass casket was filled with wired electronical components, such as a Texas Instruments 555 timer chip, which controlled the pulse of the artifice in obscure rhythm. Such mobiles are brought to you by the sun - the hidden strings apparently motivated by thin air - are truly fascinating but unreachable for neglected little ones, as they function completey different from spatio-temporal physical law. In total it resembled an overpriced 'DIY' kit, which can be purchased by kids that are eager to please their slave masters, and just require blunt assemblage, but automated reaction to a simple given task represents accomplishment in the raging post-future wars of the zone. Anyway, the femur got me to this sterile grave in the first instance. Was it blood seepage from broken vessels that our bones, like magnets, were on a collision course?

The corpse was clearly mummified to be reawaken and to fix the hap-hazards of the depreciated bloated construct. Had to get away away, but only to run in circles. The recurring, once agonizing, loss of direction doesn't bother me that much, when letting go and the body taking control over me. I make out a speckle of dust in a distance to find a torn spacesuit about 30 yards away. Actually angry about myself, I blare
"Where was your rational thinking then, private Unidentified, huh?"
"stripping down here in Cyberia?" but on further consideration I mumbled remorsefully "well, where there's foo, there's fire", and acknowledged the late reactions to hyperthermia as not so stupid after all. So on coincide I find the crime scene both here and there, obviously the old puerility of apportion the blame. John Dee certainly was once a fit and experienced space explorer but he lost his head here. Two marbles replace his once moist organs of sight, which stare at me from the astronaut's skull. Eyes made out of sand would fit my dark holes perfectly, I think to myself, but then a wound is superior to protrusion, as it points towards the center of gravity and doesn't brag about its elevated superficial status quo, which is additionally illuminated by the sun. Any excess is garbage, an excrement of earth, for which the sun is to blame. The sun makes us do things, tirelessly excavating fossil news and lubricants for warmachines. Now disgusted by the foul relic, I decide to go back as the dust yearns for mess, asking for it. At first I was concerned how to get it out, but then it was easier than thought, as the body had been previously dragged into the mud and therefore not fully collapsed and more or less indistinguishable from the environment. On exhuming I'm piercing her ribcage, breaking violently into her trunk, now only coated by a thin parchment barrier, preventing the intrusion of dust. How to connect my fibers to the new mind, the abdomen? I decide to reconfigure the mummy in a new angle, which might be more dignified for conversation. But it turns out difficult not to break into pieces, keeping the head upright, so the chin is parallel to the floor. Thumb and index finger are pressed together, to find stability in a X-legged position. I find a crack in her cranium, a deep incision, that reminded me of the medieval practice of opening a vent to drive away evil specter, would this hole have killed her in an instant and was deadly on its own?